

Prof. MOHAMED AQIL

Professor at Mohammed VI Polytechnic University, Morocco

He is an Assistant Professor at Mohammed VI Polytechnic University, where he has been working since March 2021. He earned a dual degree PhD from the University of Liège (and Mohammed First University) (His expertise is in materials science and energy storage, particularly phosphate based materials for lithium ion batteries He focuses on scaling up the production of these materials using local Moroccan resources and has experience in improving electrode materials, electrolyte modifications, coatings, and developing polymers for solid state batteries